Communal Societies

Volume Six Fall 1986

Published by the National Historic Communal Societies Association

PURPOSE

The Board of Directors of the National Historic Communal Societies Association has authorized the publication of Communal Societies to provide an outlet for manuscripts representing original research and analysis of historic and current communal groups. The widest range of academic disciplines shall be represented. Authors should write articles that will effectively transmit information across disciplines.

MANUSCRIPT SUBMISSION

Communal Societies is published annually in the fall under the general sponsorship of the National Historic Communal Societies Association (NHCSA). The offices of the Association are located at the Center for Communal Studies, University of Southern Indiana, Evansville, Indiana 47712. The Executive Director is Donald E. Pitzer.

Address manuscripts and editorial correspondence to Professor Mario S. De Pillis, Editor, Communal Societies, Department of History, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, Massachusetts 01003. Books for review should be addressed to Dr. James H. Sweetland, School of Library and Information Science, University of Wisconsin, Milwaukee, Wisconsin 53201. Authors should prepare their manuscripts in accordance with guidelines in chapter two of The Chicago Manual of Style for Authors, Editors, and Copywriters, 13th ed., revised and expanded (Chicago: University of Chicago Press, 1982). Authors will find Kate L. Turabian's practical typists' version of the Chicago Manual much more usable: A Manual for Writers of Term Papers, Theses, and Dissertations, 4th ed. (Chicago: University of Chicago Press, 1973). Except for quotations, manuscripts must be in English, although exceptional articles in major languages will be considered. Manuscripts should be submitted in two copies, one of which must be the original (no carbons), and they must be double-spaced with an inch-and-a-half margin on all sides.

Footnotes must be numbered consecutively throughout the manuscript; double-spaced; grouped together on pages separate from the manuscript; and modeled on the examples given in the Chicago Manual or Turabian. Authors alone are responsible for the contents of their articles.

Pitzer, Executive Director, NHCSA, Center for Communal Studies, University of Southern Indiana, Evansville, Indiana 47712. A Note from the Editor

AS NOTED IN VOLUME 5, this will be the last volume under my editorship.

At the October, 1986, meeting of the NHCSA, at the Shaker Village of East Canterbury, New Hampshire, the Advisory Council of the NHCSA unanimously approved the new by-laws. These new rules will greatly simplify elections and clarify terms of service.

The Board of Editors remains the same, and I herewith encourage all members to remain at least through the first year of the new editorship.

On behalf of the Association and the Board of Editors I wish to express our appreciation and thanks to Mr. Paul Wright of Boston, our copy editor. His patience, his professionalism, and his mastery of editing and printing have enabled us to uphold our standards of accuracy and typographic design.

Until the new editorial location is announced, all incoming manuscripts should be sent to the Center for Communal Studies, care of Professor Donald E. Pitzer.
